UNITED NATIONS - Acting Secretary-General Thant is considering a public appeal to Russia and the United States in the Security Council tonight in an attempt to ease the Cuban crisis, diplomatic quarters reported today.

Thant was pressured to do so in an appeal from some 40 smaller powers delivered to him this morning by the ambassadors of Cyprus, Ghana and the United Arab Republic.

Mr. Nugent never did regain the floor to continue his provocative statement. But he main-tained that he had already said all he wanted to stay anyhow.

Works Minister Fulton and Veterans Minister Churchill, the only two cabinet members in the chamber at the time, con-tended that the debate should be limited to economic matters and Cuba ruled out as a topic for speakers.
But Stanley Knowles (NDP-

MEMBERS DECIDE

Deputy Speaker Chown finally left it up to each MP speak-ing in the debate to decide for himself if his topic was "in the best interests of Canada." At another point, Mr. Chown remarked:

I only recognize the possibility that anything said with part-knowledge might have a most embarrassing effect on our be-

Before the interruption, Mr. Nugent said the U.S. has some cause to be annoyed with Cuba's "great love affair with Communist Russia" but it was "quite another thing to try to impose (U.S.) will on that coun-

DRESIDENT KENNEDY'S INITIative in Cuba has passed its first test. The alliance of the free world has rallied behind its leader, the United States. From the capitals of the NATO nations, including Canada, comes the same answerquarantine of Cuba is justified by the provocative acts and cynical deception of the Russian government.

Simultaneously the Organization of American States, representing all the nations of the western hemisphere except Canada, is solidly behind American policy, though in the past it has often been divided and critical of its chief member. Not since the Korean war has the world, witnessed such a quick and massive rejoinder to a threat of aggression.

The second test of the President's initiative may occur within hours as Russian ships, presumably carrying weapons, approach Cuba. Whether they will accept or reject American inspection, whether the quarantine must compel the use of force, with all the risks involved, is not clear at this writing. But it is almost unbelievable that Russia will not soon react to American intervention at some point, perhaps far from That reaction would pose the third threat in a crisis now mov-ing toward its climax.

Meanwhile the United States has laid its case, with supporting evidence, before the world forum. It asks the United Nations to insist on the abadonment of Russian missile bases in Cuba and to send observers there.

The American government has no doubt about what the observers would find, since aerial photographs clearly reveal launching pads, offensive missiles and Russian war planes. Washington's proof on that score apparently is not questioned in any of the allied capitals but, as was said here yesterday, it is important that the facts be checked on the ground if possible-not because the United States' word is questioned anywhere in the West but because the neutral world is always suspicious of the great powers.

The reply of Russia and its Cuban puppet to the charges of establishing a military menace close to the shores of the western hemisphere is no surprise. The two Communist states deny everything, ignore the photographic evidence and, as usual, resort to an unsupported attack on American "imperialism."

This tactic, when Russia has been caught red-handed, is old and fam-Cuba is saying only what it is told to say by its master and its flat refusal to admit United Nations observers is the best proof that it has something to conceal. If there are no aggressive weapons in Cuba what has it to hide from the parliament of mankind?

Barring an explosion in the Caribbean or elsewhere, the United Nation debate probably will drag on, with the customary charges and counter-charges, but with little immediate, tangible result.

It would be a short view, however, to suppose that this argument is useless. So long as the protagon-ists are arguing and not shooting there is the chance of negotiation as the international atmosphere cools, the chance for Russia to reconsider an adventure that, pressed any further, could lead to the holocaust of nuclear war.

This indeed is the sovereign ques tion-will Russia risk a general suicide for a military base which, on its own word, it does not need? We should know within days, perhaps the most critical days in human history.

Mr. Stevenson's tone is admirable. His example should be followed by all Western statesmen in these dangerous times when loose talk will with everything your correspondent has only worsen the crisis. It is reastoring to see that Canadian political which in reality is no shelter at all and the control of leaders are acting with this sense of responsibility and, except for Mr. Douglas, are united without regard to party behind a good neighbor now calling a halt to aggression in the back of the legs.

In the presence of this threat they can do no other.

IT IS IRONIC THAT THE SEV-1 enteenth anniversary of the Charter of the United Nations should be celebrated as the world teeters on the brink of nuclear war. The enterprise for peace that was begun with such high hopes and splendid ideals in San Francisco as the echoes of the Second World War still reverberated finds itself in an increasingly warlike world.

In both nations railway workers want higher pay. In each, higher pay can be provided in one of two ways — either through expanded subsidies or through economies in operation which necessitate the abandonment of some non-paying three and the introduction of certain lines and the introduction of certain

Canada has received a case report from the MacPherson commission recommending deep surgery, with the amputation of some branch lines. In Britain a similar remedy been suggested along with an invitation to study the philosophy of railways. "The difficulty of the unions is that, while they now can see that the Transport Executive can only pay their members high wages if the services that hold wages down are cut out, they cannot appear to exchange the jobs of a minority of their members for better pay for the majority."

There are of course differences

There are, of course, difference in the basic use of railways in Britain and in Canada. Long-haul Britain and in Canada, Long-haul rail freight seems essential in this by law in Canada, yet, once again, we country. The commuter passenger trains appear equally necessary in Britain. Population Bang

Toronto Daily Star

IN the 164 years since the Rev. Thomas Malthus, English economist, pub-lished his theories about over-population, people have been gloomy about the "population explosion."

Recent findings of United Nations statisticians accent this pessimism and underline the need for birth control measures in over-populated, underdeveloped countries.

The world's population, they reported, is increasing by 55,000,000 a year. It is now about 3½ billion. Only 35 years ago it was less than two billion. The ago it was less than two binon. I have never tried to make sense out of British Columbia's beer parlor regulations. Frankly, I don't think there's any sense in My views could be biased of course. Since the day in my fifth year, when Grandfather drew me a small glass from the keg in our basement for whistling "Grace Darling" to his cronies, sitting around on old soap boxes and the chopping block, I've enjoyed a lager when I wanted it.

I'm disinclined to believe that a youth 20 years, 11 months, 30 days, 23 hours, 59 minutes old is unable to handle his beer, but that one minute later he can take it like a Doesn't make sense

So I've never worried because college or varsity boys used to go to the Georgia when they couldn't justify the purchase of a Pil-serier on the basis of their birth certificates. It didn't even bother me when I was in that ambiguous position.

But I am infinitely distressed when I hear that this cosy oasis in our neighboring town no longer may welcome the young

The Georgia was a special sort of haven when my generation was young and over there on college invasions or rugby trips. You went to the pub under the hotel not merely to assert your manhood or to drink beer, but to meet friendly folk—the players against whom you had been struggling in

The table under the stairs when you came in from the street held a particular magnetism. You could sit there with your beer in front of you and enjoy the atmosphere. riotous, if memory serves, but laughtei dwelt there.

In a distant day you might be drinking a beer with Reg and Godfrey Wenman after a McKechnie Cup game when the Barrett boys, Bert and Phil, would drop in, along with Derry Tye and other Victorians who went to Point Grey and helped to make it important as a rugby centre.

The talk would be easy, salted with a decent masculinity, spiced with a story or two. There was a comfortable feel about the place. Nobody was rushing you. The beer came when you wanted it, wasn't pushed.
Outside was a strange town, people hurry-ing a little too much. Away from it you found room at the inn.

We replayed old rugby games there, relived incidents of earlier boyhood, forgot that some of the crowd hadn't reached 21, but accepted the youngsters as part of the com-

I made my last sentimental journey to the pub when the British Empire Games were in progress in Vancouver. We had to wait a while to move to the table under the stairs. Some Australian weight-lifters occupied it and we didn't join them immediately. But eventually we moved in, and as was the custom at the Georgia, they made room for us. Soon we were gathered together in the atmosphere which belonged uniquely to that

Now, they tell me, the institution has died a splendid institution where the law about age might have been bent a little but in the interests of a warm sociability.

I shall go that way again, and passing e tavern door, will listen hopefully for mystic voices softly calling: "My girl's a hullabaoo, she goes to varsity too."

It's getting so a man has to listen more intently for these mystic voices. Too many of the real life ones are raised no more. If the sound of young voices in the Georgia has been stilled, that, it seems to me, is a loss indeed.

Some of the players acted with mutinous spite after the Dodgers folded up in the playoff. Across the season animosity has been expressed continuously by a band of players who despise Alston. Arguments between Alston and Durocher occurred in the dugout during ball games with the team as spectators.

The situation appeared beyond redemption after Duro-ther was accused of demeaning Alston's techniques of leadership during a fete for the Los Angeles clerical help on the grieving night of the playoff's final game. There must be an exodus of dissatisfied players and Buzzy Bavasi, the gen-

Bavasi Put Own Position In Danger

The remark was the identical one attributed to Durocher at the exercise in despondency which mourned the Dodger defeat. It was believed around the National League that Durocher anticipated he would occupy the manager's office next year if the Dodgers finished second. That was the accepted reason why he stalled when Cleveland attempted to hire him.

The franchise owner, Walter O'Malley, opposed bringing back Alston. But Bavasi stood up for the manager. At the World Series baseball people contended that Bavasi put his own position in Jeopardy when he challenged O'Malley's opinion. The general manager's allegiance incited erroneous the team's proprietor, measured him as a liability. The man who holds the stock usually prevails in baseball and

Bobby Bragan became the Milwaukee curator. There is no manager's assignment presently available for Durocher. He will probably stay with the Dodgers until a job opens up.

Their relationship, once cordial in a commercial way, turned sour. Once Durocher was the only coach to dress with Alston in his private alcove. But he moved into the big room with the players as the summer perished. Last Season they sat together on the bus jumps and the plane trips. In September, Durocher used the rear seats and Pete Reiser, another Dodger coach, became the manager's closest

Liston Plans First Defence In February

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Sonny Liston will break away from Championship Sports Inc. for alleged breach of payment-contract and make his first title defence against Floyd Patterson under new promotion in February, possibly at Baltimore, says advisor Jack Nilon.

SAVE STROKES

Start becoming a good chipper now! Get out on the practice green. When chipping, play the ball off your right instep as the illustration shows. Keep your clubface closed and don't aim for shot-height. Try to keep your body movement to a minimum. Make it a wrist and arm shot as much as possible. And hit on through the ball—always.

And don't be too anxious to see where the ball goes. Keep the head down until the shot and follow-through are finished.

Woman Awarded By Chatterton $23,187 After Crash

VANCOUVER (CP) - Mrs. Joyce Robinson, Nanaimo, has been awarded damages totalling $23,187 for injuries she received when she was $23,187 for injuries she received when she was struck by an auto five years ago.

The award was made Tuesday by Mr. Justice N. W. Whittaker in Supreme Court against John Duchscher, driver of the car which struck her. The woman received multiple leg and other injuries.

The court was told that Mrs. Robinson was in a group of persons standing on the side of Bowen Road following an earlier minor auto mishap when the Duchscher vehicle ran into them. Two persons died and others were injured.

Mr. Justice Whattaker ruled that Mrs. Robinson's injuries were caused by the negligence of Duchschen. He found that excessive speed on a slippery road surface caused him to lose control of his car.

The department of highways announced Tuesday night that temporary repairs have been completed on the Englishman River Bridge near Parksville.

The span was damaged Monday when hit by the trailer of a heavy logging truck. Severe load limitations had been placed on the bridge, a link in the Island Highway.

Officials say loaded buses are now being allowed to use the bridge since temporary supports were put in place but there is a gross load limit of 54,000 pounds on the span.

Interment was in the family plot of St. Mary's Anglican Cemetery, Somenos.

DUNCAN—The Vancouver Island District Council of AOTS Men's Clubs met in Duncan at the weekend with 12 clubs sending representatives.

The group agreed to sponsor a dinner for 90 boys attending the Older Boys' Parliament in December.

Plans were made for a giant auction on Nov. 14 in Victoria with all proceeds going to the building of Branter House at George Pringle Camp, Shawnigan Lake.

The annual meeting for the district was set for Jan. 18 at Mill Bay.

PRESTO! EYESORES BECOME ELEGANT

Old World charm and beauty is hidden by hideous grime and flaking paint in Bastion Square as vividly demonstrated by this juxtaposition of now and when. Photo at right shows the famous Burnes House hotel, below the old Courthouse, as it appears today as a storage warehouse. Watercolor painting above shows the same buildings as they would appear with a little cleaning, some paint, flower boxes and a few trees instead of parked cars in the * * Artist Alan Edwards, a recently returned Victorian, was shocked by the waste of Victoria's architectural heritage and painted the startling contrast a little imagination could bring. Mr. Edwards, an interior decorating consultant for the Hilton hotel being constructed in Tokyo, has designed Royal Libiley Hernital's power lebby the Courses Calleyy Jubilee Hospital's new lobby, the Cypress Gallery and Green Dolphin shops on Fort, the George Inn on Broughton and the new Standard Furniture exterior on Yates during the past year.

He contends that establishment of a new arts centre in the old Courthouse could be complemented by turning the square into a park and refurbishing the Burnes House as a first-class restaurant with local crafts shops—including ceramics and weaving—in its upper floors. Mr. Edwards says such a treatment would turn the square into a tourist and local attraction rivalling the well-known Jackson Square of San Francisco and transform ugliness into beauty.

New Museum Move For Old Courthouse

By JOHN MIKA

Officials of the Maritime Museum of B.C. plan to ask the provincial cabinet to turn the old Courthouse over to the non-profit museum organization.

"I have written Premier Bennett asking for an appointment so we can present our brief," Commodore John Charles, board chairman, confirmed today.

The request is the latest in a series of moves that began early this year when the museum officials first sought the Courthouse in Bastion Square as a new headquarters.

Since then, concerted cam paigns have been launched by separate groups to obtain the Courthouse for either a crafts centre or an arts centre.

VICE-REGAL TREES COME DOWN

Maple trees gracing exit driveway of Government House grounds were cut down today because of the evidence of dry rot at their bases. But they will be replaced within the next two weeks with about 24 liquidambers, otherwise known as gum trees (Styraciflua). They have maple-like leaves which turn to vivid autumn colors of orange, brown and red. The new trees will all be about 15 feet in height when planted. They were brought here from the United States last year and kept in a nursery.

Enjoy New Spacious Lounge As Machines Work Overtime By PENNY SAVER

In the bid to outdo one another coin-operated laundro-mats and dry-cleaning establishments are creating the most luxurious lounges in town.

Penny visited one this morning that would do justice to any hotel lobby. Behind an attractive wall divider there was a spacious room with modern, comfortable chairs, just made for relaxing with a gup of coffee. In the corner a table with an arborite top and bench has been arranged for children.

It is all well and good to have a comfortable lounge, but more important is what goes on while you are lounging.

Your laundry swirls around in an automatic washing machine which is the same as most machines in other laundromats. The difference comes in the dryer. These dryers are equipped with a load control switch which means that you can adjust the rate of revolutions per minute and consequently get more for your dime.

As you have probably discovered from experience, if you have a very small load in a dryer the speed with which it revolves keeps the clothes flat against the sides and they do not tumble dry. This control handle means that you can adjust all loads so that they will tumble and come out fluffy

Waiting to attend you is a courteous counsellor who ex-plained the mechanics of the coin-operated dry-cleaning machine to Penny.

These machines are built to hold 10 pounds, which gives you two pounds more for your $2.

The counsellor will assist you with your dry-cleaning operation. All fabrics are tested first for their color fastness and a special solution is rubbed on extra dirty spots before being enclosed in the inner sanctum. Once dry cleaned you can have your clothes put in plastic

Once dry cleaned you can have your clothes put in plastic bags for storage. This service is available for an extra nickel. Penny had her doubts about the magic promises of these machines until she tried one and now she is saving quarters for another visit.

If fall has been sneaking up "Why Grow Old?" this week on would you will know that I am bringing you will know that I am bringing you my Trick and Treat Diet booklet forts of a lounge while your clothes are all whirling around in the latest equipment call Penny at 382-3131.

slight fall in Hutchlson

The legend is false. All we have achieved so far is a reprieve, not a recovery. The tourniquet of the so-called a usterity program has staunched an almost fatal hemorrhage but the patient has not been cured. He has only been given the chance of cure, concerning which the physicians of politics are now quarrelling at the risk of an other relapse:

Obviously there can be no cured until the physicians, or a majority of them, agree on the method of treatment. Before they can agree, however, they must re-assess the fact, the symptoms of the disease. And that, for reasons of honest confusion or cynical politics, they have failed to do, publicly at any rate.

In considering these things and setting an order of priorities we shall have to face six undeniable facts u su ally example to the disease. And that, for reasons of honest confusion or cynical politics, they have failed to do, publicly at any rate.

In considering these things and setting an order of priorities we shall have to face six undeniable facts u su ally even when the materials are at hand, the workmen idle.

First, to re-establish confidence in Canada, at home and abroad, and to encourage in vestment, we must soon baltone the budget where possible by economies, if necessary even by higher taxes that will not further burden enterprise.

For if our present deficits con Hutchison lacks today is not merely a recovery, majority government, able to govern, but an order of priorities. What do we wish to accomplish in the end? What can we actually afford at the simply cannot afford any in-moment? To combine our de- crease in desirable but nonsires with our means in a productive social services for workable sequence is the supreme task of politics, so far defaulted.

The default is disguised

The default is disguised temporarily by a furious debate about "tight money," always presented in false colors of black and white, as if we must choose between perpetual depression or the quick ruin of inflation. Those, of course, are not the only choices open, to us, though one might think they were in the wrangles of Parliament.

Undoubtedly there are politicians who would attempt to strangle the economy by refusing it sufficient credit in a kind of national masochism and ectasy of self-torture for the good of the Canadian soul. There are others who would pump up the economy by unilmited doses of money until, after a brief spasm, it collapsed like a balloon. But neither of these remedies is required or, in politics, possible.

Andy sends a Hammond's Nature Atlas of America to Johnny More, age 12, of Portland, Oregon, for his question: What is catnip?

Catnip is a fragrant weed of the mint family, a close cousi of the fragrant spearmint and pappermint. Its furry leaves are shaped like little hearts, are shaped like little learns, green above and greenish white below. In the right season, the plant bears dainty spires of pinkish-white blossoms and in some parts of the country the cathin grows by Another revival in trade fairs since 100 buyers are coming in a their heyday in the Middle Ages, says the president of the Montreal International Trade Fair. This year's fair opens in Montreal Friday, with exhibitors from three continents looking for orders.

President Robert Letendre will come to the fair for a one-day shopping trip. Another 100 buyers are coming in a body from Paris.

Mr. Letendre, who has had 22 years' experience in organizing industrial shows, says Montreal now should have a much larger trade fair if facilities were available.

Old World charm and beauty is hidden by holeous grime and flaking paint in Bastion Square as vividly demonstrated by this juxtaposition of now and when. Photo at right shows the famous Burnes House hotel, below the old Courthouse, as it appears above shows the same buildings as they would appear with a little cleaning, some paint, flower boxes and a few trees instead of parked cars in the square.

Artist Alan Edwards, a recently returned Victorian, was shocked by the waste of Victoria's architectural heritage and painted the startling contrast a little imagination could bring. Mr. Edwards, an interior decorating consultant for the Hilton hotel being constructed in Tokyo, has designed Royal Lubiles Hospital's new lobby the Cornect Callege. Jubilee Hospital's new lobby, the Cypress Gallery and Green Dolphin shops on Fort, the George Inn on Broughton and the new Standard Furniture exterior on Yates during the past year.

He contends that establishment of a new arts centre in the old Courthouse could be complemented by turning the square into a park and refurbishing Burnes House as a first-class restaurant with local crafts shops—including ceramics and weaving—in its upper floors. Mr. Edwards says such a treatment would turn the square into a tourist and local attraction rivalling the well-known Jackson Square of San Francisco and transform ugliness into beauty.

New Museum Move For Old Courthouse

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1962-PAGE 17

Officials of the Maritime Museum of B.C. plan to ask the provincial cabinet to turn the old Courthouse over to the non-profit museum organization.

"I have written Premier Bennett asking for an appointment so we can present our brief," Commodore John Charles, board chairman, confirmed today.

The request is the latest in a series of moves that began early this year when the museum officials first sought the Courthouse in Bastion Square as a new headquarters.

Since then, concerted campaigns have been launched by separate groups to obtain the Courthouse for either a crafts centre or an arts centre.
